The Quetzal

This beautiful bird lives inside the rotting trees of the Southern and Central rainforest. The Quetzal is famous for its beautiful three-foot long tail feathers, and was considered sacred by the Mayan people. Sadly, the Quetzal is in danger of extinction. This may be due to the fact that the Quetzal is a poor flyer, and its predators, the kinkajou, a type of gray squirrel, and the Ornate Hawk-eagle find it an easy catch! Unfortunately, they do not survive in captivity and do not reproduce rapidly.
